

Huerta Refuses to Leave Without His Party

Puerto Mexico, July 20.—Smoking cigarettes and drinking heavily Huerta today refused to leave Mexico until his entire party can take refuge on the sea. The dictator has not lost any of the iron nerve that has carried him through since he took office.

The party is awaiting the steamer Mexico in which the dictator's family will sail for Jamaica. Then Huerta and officers will board the German cruiser Dresden for Europe.

MINUTES IN MANHATTAN

By Gotham Knickerbocker.
New York, July 20.—These United States often complain of being ruled by Wall Street. But there is sometimes just as much reason for complaint of the control of the whole nation by the Manhattan lower East Side. The Bowery District time out of memory has had the say at Tammany Hall, the Hall usually dominates the State and at times the City of New York. The New York delegation is the single greatest force at the Democratic National Conventions, and even at times, of a hostile administration like the present one. Tammany Hall wields a subtle power in Washington.

So the Bowery is and should be of interest to every American citizen. The lower East Side with its 600,000 population in a square mile is more than a curiosity to tourists from the West. Los Angeles and Portland may feel the weight of its hand any day.

Today I wandered down to Fourteenth street, for rumors had reached me of a most distressing fight inside the Tiger camp, a quarrel which is troubling the spirits of the master minds in "the organization" as much or more than the trial of Police Lieutenant Becker and its attendant revelations. And the battle ground is the old East Side again, with genial old Sheriff Tom Foley, they still call him that in the centre of the mix-up and Charlie Murphy working his not by any means despicable brain power overtime in an effort to decide whether to "mix it up" himself or "let the boys fight it out."

Altogether it is a most alarming situation, I learned from a Wigwam friend, and Mr. Murphy may have to follow Dick Croker back to Ireland as a sequel.

Foley is leader of the Bowery and he yields much more power than ever did Little and Big Tim Sullivan and their clan.

It was in 1901 that the Sheriff with the help of Police Chief William S. Devery and Big Tim Sullivan, knocked down Paddy Dwyer and dragged him out of the leadership chair of the Second District.

For thirteen years the Sheriff has reigned and his power has waxed. But in the last twelve months there have been serious clouds on the big leader's horizon. He was surprised in the spring of 1913 to find himself attacked at both ends of his bailiwick. In the north Michael Rofrano, a clever Italian-American set up his standard. In the south, just underneath the Brooklyn Bridge, the brothers Driscoll, Clem and Gene, proclaimed their independence.

"These men are what they are through me," said Tom. "I befriended them and pushed them forward and now they are vicious."

COMMISSION NOT LIKELY TO ALLOW INCREASED RATES

Washington, July 20.—The opinion prevailed about Commerce Commission headquarters today that decision in the advance rate case will be against the general increase of five per cent as asked by roads, but increases of various degrees will be allowed on certain classes of freight.

The contention of Louis Brandeis will be upheld that railroads should collect for services now rendered free to big shippers. This will increase their revenues fifty-five million dollars. Decision is expected this week.

Ten Fail To Ride For One Ticket

In the best of spirits, and already gloating over how easy it was going to be to take the scalp of a baseball team at Blakely, Ga., ten negro ball players of Dothan boarded the 8:20 Central of Georgia train today, but found to their sorrow that one ticket was not good for the transportation of the entire ball team.

Upon their failure to produce transportation, the nine negroes were told that they would have to cough up sufficient wherewithal or get off the wagon. The negro who held the one ticket decided he could not play Blakely alone, so with visible reluctance, he detoured with the rest of his fellow players.

With baseball bats, gloves, balls and other paraphernalia, ten disappointed negroes decided not to go to Blakely, but to stay in Dothan, where the only ticket required is a street tax receipt from the city.

The cause of the misunderstanding is not known. The ticket agent at the Central of Georgia station said one of the negroes called yesterday and asked if the ticket had come. The agent said he told the negro that the ticket was there, and sure enough it was. But ten players could not ride on one ticket, and there is where the trouble was. Why the Blakely bunch wired only one ticket is not known.

Ten negro ball players of Dothan are in town today, but they have no scalp of the Blakely Rounders dangling from their belts. "There's a reason."

Insurance Companies May Pay More Tax

Tax Commissioner R. W. Lisenby has received information from official sources that insurance companies will have to pay taxes on business transacted not alone in town but also in the county, according to a ruling of Attorney General R. C. Brickell. He also has been advised that companies doing a marine insurance business are also liable the same as fire insurance companies. If such is the case, and the monies are collected, it will represent an interesting amount of revenue.

Terre Haute, Ind., July 20.—Representatives of 725,000 members of the Knights of Pythias are here today for the week encampment of the Uniform Rank. Six thousand members of the Uniform Rank will attend and 8,000 subordinate lodges will send from one to five delegates. The city is crowded with members of the fraternal order and every train brings new cohorts.

The encampment is in the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the institution of the first Knights of Pythias lodge at Washington, D. C., on February 19, 1864. Five men were charter members of the mother lodge, which now numbers about three quarters of a million men.

Major General Arthur J. Stohart of St. Paul, Minn., is in charge of the encampment. The Terre Haute Chapter of Commerce assumed the responsibility of raising the necessary money. Other organizations enlisted with it, including the Central Labor Union which never before departed from labor affairs in its organized capacity.

Harry Wade of Indianapolis, grand keeper of records and seals of the Indiana grand lodge, made arrangements with the supreme grand lodge for an allowance of $5,000 toward the fund for the encampment. A fine site for the encampment near the city has been given free.

The last encampment held was in Milwaukee in 1910. It has been the custom to hold them at the same time and place as the biennial meeting of the supreme grand lodge, but in 1912 the encampment was omitted. The supreme lodge meets this year at Winnipeg.

Chicago will send nearly a full regiment to the encampment. The prize drills are expected to prove a big attraction. Being hosts the two Terre Haute companies have won many prizes will not content here.

N. Y. LIMITED WRECKED; TWO TRAINMEN INJURED

FORCE WORTH TO BUY PENNSYLVANIA COAL

Washington, July 20.—Benjamin Dufaney, a Tennessee coal operator, testified before the Senate Committee that George F. Baker, Elbert H. Gary and Adrain Inghin, through control of southern railroads forced the Southern markets to buy Pennsylvania coal from them.

Commissioners To Meet Again Tuesday

The County Commissioners court adjourned Saturday to meet again Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock for the purpose of having a settlement with Tax Collector Smith Hall.

The court was busy last week, in some instances lowering taxes while others were raised.

VILLA WOULD NOT ATTEMPT TO OVER- THROW CARRANZA

Washington, July 20.—General Villa will never attempt to overthrow the Carranza government, according to Constitutionalists here, because Villa's interests are identical with those of the other generals. All want pensions and land for soldiers. Carranza is pledged to take these concessions.

It is pointed out that the northern Mexican states are too arid and poor to support a government, should Villa declare to separate the republic.

Advices from Mexico City say peace will soon be arranged between Carranza and Carranza, but Villa is causing anxiety. Despite assurances from Constitutionalists here that Villa will cause no trouble, officials are watching him with concern.

10,000 Fair Post Cards For Sale

Five thousand waterproof posters to be used in advertising the first annual exhibition of the Southeast Alabama Fair Association have been received at the office of the Secretary.

Besides the posters, 10,000 postcards, featuring "fair courtesies," the emblem of the association, are on hand and will be placed on sale at the drug stores. The association hopes that these cards will be given a wide circulation by Dothan people in their correspondence with out of town friends.

The contract for the printing of the fair catalogue has been awarded but the Secretary says space may be obtained in the catalogue by merchants who so desire. The book will be issued within two or three weeks.

TO START CAMPAIGN.

An agricultural and educational campaign will be inaugurated by the Chamber of Commerce, probably starting Monday. Positive announcement of engagements will not be made until after a conference with Dr. C. C. Dalton, who is expected in Dothan tomorrow.

Among well known educators, who will assist in the educational part of the program are J. V. Brown and R. H. Southland of Dothan, and C. W. Johnson of Columbia.

About 21 Negroes Fined By Mayor

About 21 cases, the defendants in most instances being negroes, were disposed of in Mayor's court this morning, and if all the fines are paid the city will receive an interesting sum of money. Otherwise, indications are that the street cleaning will get new recruits. The charges were for minor offenses, such as vagrancy, gaming, etc.

The only whiskey case heard was that against W. H. Griffin, the case being an old one which was in Mayor's court before the convening of the Circuit Court, but which has been continued from time to time. He was fined $100 or six months hard labor.

TRY TO SETTLE CONTROVERSEY OVER HOME RULE BILL

MADAME CALLAUX IS PUT ON TRIAL FOR MURDER

Paris, July 20.—Fresh from the hands of a beauty doctor, Madame Henriette Callaux, wife of former Minister of Finance, was placed on trial for life for shooting Gaston Calmette, editor of The Figaro, on March sixteenth.

The palace of justice bristled like a fortress with armed troops and police to prevent a popular outbreak.

During the night Madame Callaux occupied a cell adjoining that in which Marie Antoinette was imprisoned during the French revolution. She showed no trepidation when she faced Judge Albaladejo in court. The prison pallor had been removed by the beauty specialist, and she was dressed in the height of fashion. When the indictment was read, however, the prisoner broke down and sobbed convulsively.

Deposition in behalf of the prisoner made by President Poincaré will be introduced. The first time in history a president has testified at a murder trial.

Following an outburst of tears, the prisoner made a long, passionate statement to the jury declaring she killed the editor to save the honor of herself and husband. She gained the sympathy of the spectators.

It is reported Madame Callaux will take the stand and assume all responsibility for the killing. Then the husband will testify that his wife lost her head following his threats to kill Calmette. If this plan is followed it is believed she will be acquitted.

Paris, July 20.—Genevieve Henriette Callaux was put on trial here today for the murder of Gaston Calmette, editor of The Figaro. The political aspects make this easily the most important criminal case ever held here. It has already caused several cabinet convulsions. By his vindication in the recent elections, Joseph Callaux, husband of the defendant, once Premier and four times Minister of Finance, is again the strongest man in France and the real ruler of the nation through Premier Viviani.

The trial today began before 5 judges, M. Albaladejo presiding. There are fifty witnesses for the prosecution and about twenty for the defense.

Maitre Labori, the most famous criminal lawyer in France, heads Mme. Callaux's counsel. He will concentrate his efforts on lightening his client's punishment as her guilt is certain. He will summon a leading surgeon to testify that her vision might have been saved if bleeding had been stopped and no operation attempted and that, therefore, she is not guilty of murder. Labori will endeavor also to take full advantage of the First Offender's Act.

On account of the beauty of the defendant, her high position and the element of the protection of her husband's and her own honor involved in her crime is generally taken for granted that she will not

London, July 20.—Is an effort to settle the home rule controversy King George and representatives of all opposing factions will meet tomorrow to decide whether Ulster will be excluded from operations of the home rule bill.

The king will hear arguments of all sides and it is hoped the matter can be amicably settled.

WEATHER TO A COOLER

DURING PRESENT WEEK
(Washington, July 20.—The weather bureau tonight forecast another week of generally fair weather with moderate summer temperatures.

"Indications are that temperatures will average near or below the normal over all parts of the country," said the bulletin, "with little probability of extremely high readings in any section. Rainfall will be generally light and local."

"No important disturbances are charted, although a low pressure area in the far west will move eastward, reaching the eastern states near the close of the week."

This disturbance will be followed by cooler weather over the northern and central states. There are no indications of disturbance in the West Indies."

INTENSE FEELING OVER

Henderson, Ky., July 20.—There is intense feeling in western Kentucky as a result of the coal strike. Mine property is heavily guarded, and authorities are prepared for disturbances.

Six strikers were wounded in a fight with Superintendent Cox of the Vevier mine.

SEEKING INFORMATION ON CONVICT LAW

For the purpose of obtaining specific information concerning some of the convict laws in Alabama, Hyrd G. Farmer, a Dothan lawyer, and Superintendent McKelvin, of county road construction, are in Montgomery.

Just what aspect of the convict law upon which information is being sought, is not known. It is not believed, however, that the conference has to do with the recent suspension of sentence on Ed Inge, by Mayor Joe Baker in whose court the man was convicted and sentenced to hard labor on the county roads. It is said that Mayor Baker was within his rights in suspending the sentence.

or receive the death penalty and may get off lightly. It is expected the trial will last six days. The prosecuting general has ordered all women barred from the court room but this order will probably be modified.

Despite her comparatively early confinement in St. Lazare, Mme. Callaux's appearance was even today to have undergone a profound change since her arrest. She has aged greatly and while calm in manner, shows no symptoms of air.

Southeast Alabama Farmers, Here's The Best Way to Get Rid of the Boll Weevil.

Buy a ten acre truck and grapefruit farm in Southeast Florida, move there and leave the weevils here.

Men who have taken this advice are making more money, having better health, more leisure time, more pleasure, than they ever had on a 200 acre cotton farm in their lives.

We have seen truck farms there making as high as $1000 an acre net profit, net profit, look at that again. Any intelligent Southeast Alabama farmer can do the same. If a man fails to get less than $500 an acre net profit, he is considered a poor farmer.

Our lands are below the frost line and we will put all kinds of vegetables on the northern markets in December, January, February and March every year, at the time of the year when there are none any where else in the United States except in South Florida.

Grapefruit, planted the second year after the land is cleared, will begin to pay in the fourth year after setting out and are paying the owners net profits of $1500 an acre during the fifth, six and seventh years. The profit increase as the trees get older until the trees are fifteen years old when the profits run to $2500 an acre and more.

We have only sixteen ten acre tracts left to sell to Southeast Alabama people. We will move on the land our selves next fall and develop the remainder of the section we bought. We have soil surveys, photographs, maps and full descriptions of our lands at the office of L. G. Biggers, Dothan, Ala. See him at once if interested.

Slavery in Papua

Australia has put herself in a bad fix by taking over the government of British New Guinea, or Papua, on the great tropical island to the north of the Commonwealth. Slavery in a subtle form has been revealed, and now kind-hearted, civilized Australia must spend large amounts of money to get out this disgrace.

The secret of the trouble is largely the immense number of dialects which the blacks of Papua speak. Each village has a dialect so different from the others as to amount almost to a language.

When the territory became subject to the commonwealth of Australia in 1907, a system of indentured labor for the plantations was introduced which, it was thought, would prevent the enslaving of the ignorant natives.

White men rule in Papua through divisional magistrates and a native constabulary. The men of the constabulary are trained, and more or less educated. They speak many of the curious dialects of the Papuan village communities.

The government requires the "boys" to "sign on" their indenture before a magistrate, who is supposed to protect the "boys" interests.

The magistrate has to see that each recruit understands where he is going, for how long he is indentured and how much he is to be paid. There are inspectors, too, who tour the plantations, inspect the "boys" quarters and see to their welfare generally.

If the magistrate be a clever linguist and a fearless, incorruptible man all goes well. But if he can speak only one or two dialects, he is at the mercy of his native interpreters. Not only magistrates, but planters as well are often deceived by unscrupulous professional labor recruiters. The latter are able to have indentures signed by natives who are really fiercely antagonistic to a three years' sacrifice of their freedom.

The result is a desertion from the plantations, regular slave hunts, by the native police, and the punishment of blacks for breaches of contracts into which they have never knowingly entered. All this can happen under the sway of a perfectly honest incorruptible magistrate.

Accounts of cases where native police threatened men with the destruction of their villages if they refused to sign on a term of years; of the actual handcuffing of many "boys" who declined to come away quietly at the bidding of recruiters and of the capture of the entire able bodied males of one village have just been made public in Melbourne.

In these cases, however, the magistrates were in league with the recruiters. One magistrate told the "boys" they would be put in jail for three years if they did not sign. A magistrate has just been dismissed after a trial at Port Moresby and the official heads of others are likely to fall.

ing me." 'Twas a good deal for a taciturn Tammany leader to say.

Foley was so aggravated that he called Refraro "an inflated little emigrant" and referred to Clem Driscoll as a "discredited little plainhead."

The latter was an illusion to Clem's career as First Deputy Commissioner of Police. The late mayor Gaynor had Clem clean up the dishonest tradesmen's scales, called him his "steam engine in boots" and finally gave him next to the best job in the force of guardians of the law here. Then Clem had a sudden heavy fall.

But Clem out of office turned his activities toward politics. The result enraged Foley, though his leadership was not seriously endangered. Then the "rebels" tried to send some Foley men to prison on allegations of election frauds.

The Driscolls and Refraro were pretty small game for the Sheriff's gun, but he learned State Senator Frawley was letting the three use his office as headquarters. 'Twas then the present storm broke.

Frawley is no mean foe himself. He has a solid upper East Side district in which he was born 44 years ago behind him, he has been Senate leader and chairman of the Finance Committee since the death of Senator Thomas P. Grady, and he can claim Charley Murphy's gratitude as recent head of the legislative committee which prepared the evidence against Governor William Sulzer. He is said to be a millionaire.

It is around Murphy that the storm rages. Foley has demanded flatly that Murphy discipline Foley, that he declare for one side or the other. Charley is gravely perplexed. If he tries to overthrow Frawley he has the legislature to reckon with, but if he fails to satisfy the Sheriff he braves the ancient seat of power, the Bowery district; and that's worse. It would surprise no one if Foley grabbed Charley by the coat collar and booted him right into the Fourteenth street gutter.

Foley is out for blood. He believes Frawley has Refraro appointed to the first deputyship of the Street Cleaning Department in order to humiliate the Bowery leader. He has canvassed the executive committee of Tammany Hall thoroughly and the result has made him smile. He is assured of a majority of the committee, those who know say.

The war will come to a critical stage when Frawley gets back from Europe. Frawley is a member of the State Panama-Pacific committee, a side line of Tammany Hall this year, and is now in Germany studying expositions in order to learn how to run this one. He professes himself not troubled by Foley's indignation and as "ready to retire for the good of the organization if necessary to preserve peace." The old timers declare this is a dangerous pass. 'Tis an old Tammany trick to intimate disfavor and tell the enemy into overconfidence just before delivering a body blow.

But the sheriff won't be caught napping—that's Gotham Klucker-bocker's guess.

Her crime was the result of a three months campaign of defamation which Calmette had carried on against her husband in the columns of The Figaro. (Callaux was then Minister of Finance and the real force in the Cabinet. He had pledged himself in the levy of an income tax. In the effort to prevent the passage of the income tax act Calmette accused Callaux of many acts of political corruption, including connivance at the escape from justice of the financier, Rochette. Finding Callaux's position unshaken, Calmette grew desperate and published a letter written by Callaux in 1901 to his present wife then the wife of another. It contained a passage, which indicated, the Figaro contended that Callaux while an ostensible supporter of the income tax was secretly opposing it. The letter also might be construed as compromising to Mme. Callaux. She had cause to believe that Calmette had other stolen letters written to her by Callaux in his possession and she was driven to a frenzy by the thought of their becoming publication and probable results to her and her husband.

She drove in her automobile to the office of The Figaro on March 10th last, and sent her card in to Calmette. With Paul Bourget an author, he was about to leave but when he read the card he remarked: "It is a woman. I must receive her."

When Mme. Callaux entered his private office he asked her courteously what object she had in visiting him. "You must know it is not to say 'Bonjour' she said. She then drew a pistol and fired five shots, four of which took effect. The editor died in a few hours. The slayer calmly awaited arrest.

France was thrown into a ferment by the crime. Callaux said to his wife: "Madam, you have ruined me." He immediately resigned.

There were Royalists riots in Paris the next day and the republic was believed by many to be trembling. A series of Cabinet overthrows was ushered in and France was shaken to its foundation. But while in the election for Deputies on April 26 Socialists and Royalists made gains and the Callaux radicals lost some ground. Callaux himself was triumphantly returned a member of the Chamber. His power today is probably greater than ever.

THE ROAD TO LAUGHTERTOWN
O show me the road to Laughtertown.

For I have lost my way;

I wandered out of the path one day,

When my heart was broken my hair turned gray,

And I can't remember how to play;

It's all through sighing and weeping, they say,

O show me the road to Laughtertown,

For I have lost the way!

Would you learn the road to Laughtertown,

O ye, who have lost the way?

Would you have again a young heart though your hair be gray,

Go learn from a little child each day,

And catch the hint of his laughter gay,

And follow his dancing feet as they stray;

For he knows the road to Laughtertown,

O ye who have lost the way!

—British Weekly.
